
Ways Nonfiction Readers Read with Power...

- We rev up our minds before reading.
- Read text features (titles, subtitles, photos, captions, charts) and think, "What will this text probably say?"
- Scrutinize features.
- Ask, "How is this organized? What are the different parts?"
- Make expectations more specific.
- Think, "What do I already know about the topic?" and build expectations from that.
- Then we read with power, pausing to ask, "Is this matching my expectations? Should I change them?"

From Unit 3: Navigating Nonfiction, Sessions 1 and throughout